2. Click Login, then Espresso.

The screenshot shows the top navigation bar of the Discovery Education website. On the left is the Discovery Education logo. In the center are links for "What we offer", "Who we are", and "Free resources". On the right is a "Login" button with a dropdown arrow and a "Change location" section with flags for the United States and Canada. Below the navigation bar is a cookie consent banner. The main content area features a heading "Welcome to Discovery Education" followed by a paragraph: "Discovery Education is a trusted partner for schools, supporting them in their vision and achieving their goals with curriculum-aligned, professional development solutions and networking opportunities." Below this text are two buttons: "Request a free demo" and "Request a free trial". To the right of the text are images of the website displayed on a desktop monitor, a tablet, and a laptop.

This screenshot shows a close-up of the "Login" button from the previous image. The dropdown menu is open, displaying a list of subject areas: "Coding", "Espresso", "Health & Relationships", "Secondary", and "STEM Connect". The "Espresso" option is highlighted with a yellow background. Below the subject list is a link that says "Got a passcode?". The background of the screenshot shows a blurred view of the website's main content area.

The screenshot shows the top portion of the Discovery Education Espresso website. At the top right, there are browser navigation icons: a key icon, a star icon, a blue circle with the letter 'D', and a vertical ellipsis. Below this is a dark grey navigation bar containing the text "Forgot username or password?" followed by two input fields: "student71330" and "password". To the right of these fields is a blue "LOGIN" button and a dropdown menu labeled "Espresso" with a downward arrow. Below the dark bar is a blue navigation bar with the text "Who we are" and "Free resources" both followed by downward arrows. On the right side of this bar, it says "Change location:" followed by two circular icons representing the United States and Canada. The main content area below has the heading "Education" in a large, dark font. To the left of the heading is the text "for schools, supporting them in their goals with curriculum-aligned solutions and". Below this text is a small orange square with the letters "me" and a right-pointing arrow. To the right of the text is a stack of three devices (a laptop, a tablet, and a smartphone) displaying the website's interface on different screen sizes. The laptop screen shows a search bar, navigation tabs for "Foundations", "Key Stage 1", "Key Stage 2", and "Teacher training", and several article thumbnails with titles like "Which plants can we eat?" and "When was the Great Wall built?". The tablet screen shows a "Curriculum" page with a sidebar and main content area. The smartphone screen shows a page titled "Upper Key Stage 2" with a "Sustainable cities" article and an image of a modern building.
